

Title: Comparison of UV Climates at Summit, Greenland; Barrow, Alaska; and South Pole Station, Antarctica

Germar Bernhard, Biospherical Instruments Inc.

Abstract: A SUV-150B spectroradiometer for measuring solar UV irradiance was installed at Summit, Greenland, in August 2004. Initial measurements from this new location are compared with similar data from Barrow, Alaska, and the South Pole.